ALBERT LANGE, of Vigo. FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL, JAMES G. JONES, of Vanderburgh FOR REPORTER OF SUPREME COURT, BENJAMIN HARRISON, of Marion, FOR CLERK OF SUPREME COURT, JOHN P. JONES, of Lagrange. FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION, MILES J. FLETCHER, of Putnam.

The Supreme Court. The telegraph yesterday brought us the following intelligence:

"Judge Daniel, of the Supreme Court, died to-day (May 31st) at Richmond."

We suppose that the individual alluded to is Peter V. Daniel, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. If so, now is the opportunity for the President to reward his faithful and well-beloved servant, Attorney General Jeremiah S. Black-the man who will descend to any depth of degradation to please his master and the oligarchy. We shall probably has been boping and praying for such an opportunity to reward Judge Black's devotion, and the only thing that can prevent the appointment will be the question of location.

If Judge Black should be promoted to to admit them into the Union. the Judgeship, the Attorney Generalship will become vacant. Then Old Buch, in order to complete the disgrace of his admintion to Slavery perpetuation and extension, ought by all means to make Charles O'Conor of New York Attorney General, Mr. O'Conor believes that Slavery is a divine, a holy, a beneficent, an indispensable institution, and therefore is just the man for the modern Democratic party, and its great head and embodiment, James Buchanan,

We presume that, as the chances for Lincoln's election improve, and the danger of the Democracy losing their power increases, petitions will be presented to Judge Taney by his auxious friends, just to be so accommodating as to die or resign, so Old Buch. infaltibility of slavery than the Chief Justice. Although such a request would under ordinary circumstances be absurd-for who ever heard of a Democratic office-holder dying or resigning?-yet in view of the I can truly answer, as I have, that I am emergency—the certainty of Taney dying during Lincoln's term, for one foot is already sideration that would make me feel authorin the grave-he may, just before Buch- ized to state a position so as to hold myself anan goes out of office, in case of Lincoln's entirely bound by it. In other words, that election, resign, and give his place to a question has never been prominently enough Buchanan appointee.

I must say, may be depended on that the Democratic however, that if I should be of opinion that party will keep that in their hands, by fair Congress does possess the constitutional means or foul. It is the "forlorn hope."

Lincoln's Political Opinions. views. At no time in the canvass of 1858 did he conceal from Judge Douglas or the neople his opinions on national questions, lished Mr. Lincoln's answers to interrogatories propounded by Douglas, but we desire to republish them to-day, in connection with the full and candid explanations which he gives, and we trust that none of our readers will consider them too lengthy for careful perusal. The manner in which be answers the questions stands, out in manly contrast with the evasive replies made by Douglas. The interrogatories propounded by Douglas, and Lincoln's answers, are as follows: Question 1. "I desire to know whether Lincoln to-day stands, as he did in 1854, in suppose I say to a vast audience as strongly Fugitive Slave Law?" Answer. I do not now, nor ever did, stand in favor of the unconditional repeal of the Fugitive Slave law.

Q. 2. "I desire him to answer whether audience, he stands pledged to-day, as he did in 1854, against the admission of any more slave States into the Union, even if the people want them ?"

A. I do not now, nor ever did, stand slave States into the Union. Q. 3. "I want to know whether he stands pledged against the admission of a see fit to make?

A. I do not stand pledged against the admission of a new State into the Union, with such a Constitution as the people of my; and we believe all honest old Whigs that State may see fit to make. Q. 4. "I want to know whether he stands to-day pledged to the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia ?"

A. I am impliedly, if not expressly, pledged to a belief in the right and duty of Congress to prohibit slavery in all the United States Territories.

Q. 7. I desire him to answer whether he is opposed to the acquisition of any new territory unless slavery is first prohibited therein?' A. I am not generally opposed to honest acquisition of territory; and, in any given case. I would or would not oppose such acquisition, accordingly as I might think such acquisition would or would not aggravate the slavery question among ourselves.

Now, my friends, it will be perceived upon an examination of these questions and answers, that so far I have only answered terrogatories to ask me anything more than this, and I have answered in strict accordance with the interrogatories, and have answered truly that I am not pledged at all upon any of the points to which I have answered. But I am not disposed to hang upon the exact form of his interrogatory .--I am rather disposed to take up at least some of these questions, and state what I really think upon them.

The Fugitive Slave Law .- As to the first one, in regard to the Fugitive Slave Law, I have never besitated to say, and I do not now hesitate to say, that I think, under the Constitution of the United States, the people of the Southern States are entitled to a Congressional Fugitive Slave Law. Having said that, I have had nothing to say in regard to the existing Fugitive Slave law, further than that I think it should have been framed so as to be free from some of the objections that pertain to it, without lessening its efficiency. And inasmuch as we are not now in an agitation in regard to an alteration or modification of that law, I would not be the man to introduce it as a new subject of agitation upon the general question of slavery.

Admission of Slave States .- In regard to the other question, of whether I am pledged to the admission of any more slave States into the Union, I state to you very frankly that I would be exceedingly sorry ever to be put in a position of having to pass upon that question. I should be exceedingly glad to know that there would hear next of Mr. Buchanan sending the name of Judge Black into the Senate for confirmation as Supreme Judge of the Union; but I must add, that if slavery shall be kept out of the Territories during the territorial existence of any one given United States. It is well known that he Territory, and then the people shall, baving United States. It is well known that he the people shall, having has been hoping and praying for such a fair chance and a clear field, when they come to adopt the Constitution, do such an extraordinary thing as to adopt a slave Constitution, uninfluenced by the actual presence of the institution among them, I see no alternative, if we own the country, but conceive, the same as the second. istration, and thoroughly signalize his devo- The fourth one is in regard to the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia. In relation to that, I have my mind very distinctly made up. I should be exceedingly glad to see slavery abolished in the District of Columbia. I believe that Congress possesses the constitutional power to do it. Yet as a member of Congress, I should not with my present views, be in favor of endeavoring to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia, unless it would be upon these conditions: First, that the abolition should be gradual. Second, that it should be on a vote of the majority of the qualified voters in the District; and third, that compensation should be made to unwilling owners .-With these three conditions, I confess I would be exceedingly glad to see Congress abolish slavery in the District of Columbia, and, in can put in some younger believer in the the language of Henry Ciny, "sweep from our Capital that foul blot upon our nation.

The third interrogatory is answered by the answer to the second, it being, as I

I could investigate it if I power to abolish the slave-trade among the different States, I should still not be in favor of the exercise of that power unless upon At no time, in no manner has Mr. Lin- some conservative principle as I conceive it, coln avoided a public avowal of his political akin to what I have said in relation to the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia. My answer as to whether I desire that slavery should be prohibited in all the Terpast or present. Several days ago we pub- ritories of the United States, is full and explicit within itself, and cannot be made learer by any comments of mine. So I suppose in regard to the question whether I am opposed to the acquisition of any more terrritory unless slavery is first prohibited therein, my answer is such that I could add nothing by way of illustration, or making myself better understood, than the answer which I have placed in writing.

Now in all this, the Judge has me, and he has me on the record. I suppose he had flattered himself that I was really entertaining one set of opinions for one place and another set for another place-that I was afraid to say at one place what I uttered at another. What I am saying here ! favor of the unconditional repeal of the tending to Abolitionism as any audience in the State of Illinois, and I believe I am saying that which, if it would be offensive to any persons and render them enemies to myself, would be offensive to persons in this

These have gradually given place to patterns of grace and utility; until the varieties our markets now present have almost exhausted the vocabulary of names; and the different phases the metal is made to assume, would astonish old Vuican himself. In style and fintel, the improve-ment has been real, leaving nothing to be desired on that point, but the severe competition in price, to which they have been subjected, has deprived them of many of the flore substantial qualities desirable. This seems more especially to have been desirable. This seems more especially to have been the case in reference to cook stoves—an article of domestic economy that has more to do with scalding wives and crotchesy servants than most people imagine. The public have long sought an improvement in this article, and we believe are ready to pay any reasonable price for a cooking stove, if it only possesses the merits of size, weight, convenience, durability, economy, and perfection of manufacture. These qualities seem to be possessed most fully in the Economist—a new stove, perfected and brought out the past season, by Messrs, Treadwell, Perry & Norton, of Albany. We heard so much of this stove, and it looked so much like a stove intended for use, that we concluded to try them, and the result of the experiment convinces as that the result of the experiment convinces as that the proprieters, in their determination to make the best store in the world, have succeeded. We regard the store is the scoral, may successed. We regard the Economist as possessing all the merits above emmerated—as the great stove of the day—far in advance of anything ever attempted in the line of stoves, serfect in all its appointments, and true to its name in durability and the use of fuel. Among the many conveniences attached to it, may be mentioned a large oven, with hooks arranged, for suspending means while ransiting. A connex water tioned a large oven, with books arranged, for suspending meats while reasting. A copper water tank, holding from 12 to 25 gallons—warming closet, broiling hearth, &c., &c. The broiling hearth is one of the most neticeable features of this remarkable stove. There never has been, to our knowledge, any broiling fixture that was really satisfactory in its aperation. The proprieture of this stove have been conducting a series of experiments upon broiling, eliciting some valuable facts, and re-sulting in the invention of a gridiron adapted to this stove, which has been secured by letters patent, and is one of the most admirable things of the kind we ever saw-broiling without smoke, and keeping the coals in a constant glow. We are always glad to do justice to mechanical improvements, and sepecially such as contribute so largely to the general The Economist, which is communding such a large

of lot of these truly and justly celebrated, newly and greatly improved summer and winter Cooking Stover, of the unrivaled Stowart's Patent, and at the only agency in this city.

Thos. Scantlin's, No. 29 Main street, between First and Second. The first premium was awarded to this Stove as the best coal or wood cooking stove at the South-western Indiana District Fair, held at this place-No stove ever devised combines as numerous or important scientific principles as this of Stewart's. It broils, boils, bakes and r sets at the same me-ment, without one dish imparting flavor to another, or producing that sameness of taste in means and gravies, which, to the delicate and fastidious of taste, makes so insuperable an objection to every other cooking stove now in use. With one-fourth of the fuel employed in the best of stoves now in nee, this most perfect and complete cooking apparatus performs, simultaneously and more perfectly than has ever before been accomplished, everything required in the best provided families, so far as conking is concerned. When, too, it is borne in mind that the most delicate females can visit the kitchen when the Stowart Stove is fully employed, and the fire is at its height, without the smallest unpleasantness from the change of temperature, so little is the heat from it diffused externally, an inducement is presented for its universal employment never beretofore presented in any other stove. That, indeed, is one of its principal attractions, as well as its greatest wender, how h at is so economized and diffused within the stove itself, and so little perceptibly escapes into the kitchen, a place where, with any of the stoves now in use, other than Stewart's, it is scarcely possible for any one, in warm weather more particularly, to breathe with

For 20 years Mr. Stewart has been employed in perfecting this stove, and since last February, he has obtained three new patents for improvements. which, in his opinion, and the opinion of all who have examined it, made it perfect. Within four years twents thousand of them have been sold, under a fifti guarantee, and not one has been returned. These remarkable results have embeddened a host first premiums at every Fair where it has been exhibited. At the South-Western Indiana District Fair, held here October, 1859, there were but two premiums offered for cooking stoves—one for the best wood cooking stove, one for the best wood cooking stove, one for PREMIUM FOR THE BEST - OOKING STOVE FOR WOOD. Rocker, Klusman & Co took the first premiums were offered. The large silver medal was awarded to the Economist at the New York State Fair; and the first premium at the United States Fair held at Chicags, and twelve other State and County Fairs in 1859.

In no branch of mechanical art has there been more apparent advance than in the mannufacture of stoves. It is but a few years since imitation of the Stewart Stove, called " Pride of the West," which he will be happy to dispose of at two-thirds of the price of the genuine Stevart's.

It is possible, of course, to cook with it, but it bears no reaemblance to Stewart's.

The "Stewart" is sold by the agent, unders full guarantee to perform as recommended, and if, within three months from purchasing, any fault is found with them, he will take them back and refused the money. Housekeepers will bear in mind, then, that the genuine Stewart Stove, bought at the only the research. agent's here, will, with half the labor and one-fourth the feel, do more and better cooking than any other stove ever constructed.
